Data from NRI's Funding Sources and Expenditures of State Mental Health Agencies, FY'2001 report,

State Notes:

Utah's block grant increased by 70% from FY 1997 to 2001. Beginning September 1998, Utah has received CMHS funding for the Utah Frontiers Project to provide community mental health services for children with SED in frontier areas of the state. In FY 2001, the Frontiers Project accounted for $1.45 million in revenues/expenditures. In 1998, Utah's Medicaid system changed the payment method for inpatient services. Prior to 1998, the Utah Department of Health paid for inpatient services. After 1998, payment responsibility shifted to local mental health centers. The community programs' inpatient expenditures in 2001 reflect certain expenditures that were not paid for by community programs in 1997. There has been a significant expansion in residential programs for youth in several communities. Because of the potential for revenue generation (often these services are 'fee-for-service' as an addition to the rates that providers receive in the capitated system), this has been a popular area for expansion. In addition, over time, Utah's Division of Youth Corrections and Division of Child and Family Services have required more residential services, and expansion has been a response to this need

State Notes:

Utah's block grant increased by 70% from FY 1997 to 2001. Beginning September 1998, Utah has received CMHS funding for the Utah Frontiers Project to provide community mental health services for children with SED in frontier areas of the state. In FY 2001, the Frontiers Project accounted for $1.45 million in revenues/expenditures. In 1998, Utah's Medicaid system changed the payment method for inpatient services. Prior to 1998, the Utah Department of Health paid for inpatient services. After 1998, payment responsibility shifted to local mental health centers. The community programs' inpatient expenditures in 2001 reflect certain expenditures that were not paid for by community programs in 1997. There has been a significant expansion in residential programs for youth in several communities. Because of the potential for revenue generation (often these services are 'fee-for-service' as an addition to the rates that providers receive in the capitated system), this has been a popular area for expansion. In addition, over time, Utah's Division of Youth Corrections and Division of Child and Family Services have required more residential services, and expansion has been a response to this need.
